INTERACTIVE PODCASTING WITH TALKSHOE

Directly connect with your audience

TalkShoe is a unique website for podcasters to create live and recorded interactive podcasts -called Community Calls™. Now you can directly connect with your podcast listeners. Participants in your call can be those you specifically invite, and/or casual Internet surfers who learn of your interactive podcast online.

You and your Community Call participants have the choice of using telephones, cell phones, computers, Skype or voice-over-IP (VoIP). All live calls can be recorded and stored on the TalkShoe website for pod-casting.

Hundreds of people can talk live, thousands can listen in (stream), and an unlimited number of people can podcast the recorded Communty Call. TalkShoe has already had a single Community Call with over 500 participants!

The TalkShoe Live Experience

The key element of live interactive podcasting is TalkShoe Classic and TalkShoe Web. People can participate in a variety of modes including: listen-only (stream), text chat, and voice talking. TalkShoe Live software also features see-who’s-talking indication and text-chat sorting. Podcasters have a number of controls including: 1) start/stop recording, 2) muting voice, 3) censoring chat, and 4) request–to-talk queue management.

Podcast Recording

Community Calls are stored and listed on the TalkShoe website directory. Of course, calls can also be listed on iTunes and other podcast directories.

Hosting a Community Call

Anyone can host a Community Call using their PC or telephone. There are three (3) easy steps.

1. Become a TalkShoe user.
2. Create, describe and schedule a call.
3. Run your interactive podcast with TalkShoe Live.
